

FABERLIC

First Love Story

FABERLIC

This legend comes from Italy. There was a girl who lived in a small town. Her beauty was truly angelic: delicate features, blonde hair, heavenly eyes. All the young men of the city were fascinated by her. According to a long-standing Italian tradition, a young man had to perform a feat to earn the first kiss of his beloved one. And everyone was trying to win the favor of this particular beauty. All but one.

While others gave her gifts, they demonstrated their strength and skills, this guy, from the very morning until night, has been to the wasteland through which path of beauty lay home. Seeing him again at the same place, she asked him: "Don't you like me? You're not even trying to earn my first kiss like everyone else." To which the young man replied, "I don't want to try. I'll get it."

The girl just laughed at his self-confidence. Days and weeks passed. No one was able to get her to kiss. But one day, while walking, she saw something incredible. Thousands of tulips have bloomed in the former wasteland. They were multicolored and planted in such a way that they folded in a picturesque portrait of a girl. Her face was "painted" with snow-white tulips, blue tulips were her eyes, scarlet ones - her lips, and yellow ones were her golden hair. The portrait was detailed, accurate and as if alive. The tulips swayed in the wind, making hair in the portrait seem to be fluttering. It was an amazing, spectacular scene. The girl was looking at the tulips, without looking up, and did not even notice how the young man approached her. He took her hand, bowed his head, and she gave him her first kiss. Or, as Italians say, Primo Bacio.

FABERLIC

Keep it, my first kiss

Delicate, like the first kiss, violet. Sweet, like shivering of the first love, a dessert pear. Soft like a girl's embrace, overflows of osmanthus, plum and quince. Musk-amber trail, like bright memories of feelings.

OLFACTORY PYRAMID

TOP NOTES: DESSERT PEAR, QUINCE, AMBRETTE, VIOLET

HEART NOTES: APPLE, MARIGOLDS, OSMANTHUS, PLUM

TRAIL: AMBER, SANDALWOOD, MUSK

TOP NOTES

HEART NOTES

TRAIL

FABERLIC

*The kiss
you remember*

